After President Obama's trip to Brazil, it is obvious that he puts the interests of other nations above our own.

After the BP oil spill, it was American oil companies who were penalized with a drilling moratorium. Now Barack Obama tells officials in Brazil that he wants to help them develop offshore drilling technology so we can be their customer.

Ayn Rand was correct to say altruism is destroying America. And Barack Obama is it's most faithful practitioner as he consistently sacrifices the producers in our country.

He gives away auto-companies to the labor unions, gives away our military for a civil war in Libya, and now gives away our oil industry to South America.
