Recent news indicates that the number of immigrants returning to Mexico is offsetting the number entering the country. I heard one prominent conservative talk show host declare this is bad news for Democrats because they would be losing voters.

But I would say that this is bad news for conservatives and liberals alike. It demonstrates that market forces will ultimately decide how many immigrants will come to our country rather than arbitrary quotas and standards.

It is bad news for conservatives, because it shows we do not need tight barriers to immigration and bad news to liberals because it demonstrates the effectiveness of free market forces.
